Blankety Blanks Night

Blankety Blanks Night

Denise Tobin said "Oh my goodness, we've made so much money from the uniform shop, we will able to buy BLANK with the extra money"...

That began what was a hilarious night for 100 people at the East Malvern RSL, for the first of our social events for 2010.

The "Seventies" theme, brought out every shade of brown imaginable, featuring dresses with halter tops and safari suits. Not only were the local op shops and costume hire places raided, but also Mother's and Nana's wardrobes all in an effort to flash back to the 1970's. At least the "grey nomads" who were dining next door, felt like they were young again, as regalia of '70's fashion walked past.

Of course many thanks to those who helped and coordinated the night.

Our greatest thanks goes to Mishael Figueira, who conceived the idea, ran with it, and organised the music, questions and signage for the night. Great job Mishael, Thanks also to Mary Mazza, Prue Hynes and Kate Foldi who helped Mishael.

Michael and Kate Foldi, thank you for organising the raffles, and vouchers for our fundraising efforts as well as supplying needed stationery for the night.

To the panel, who went over and beyond the edge of risqué comebacks.

Mark Holden – Graham Watt

Jon English – Rudolf Lameijn

Stuart Wagstaff - John O'Haire

Noelene Brown – Michelle Barr (she stayed in the seventies for the next few days.

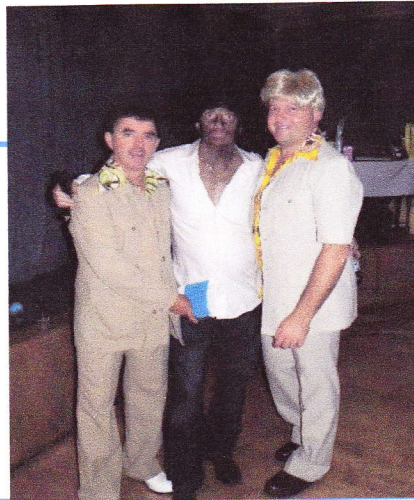

Abigail – Kim Day

Ugly Dave Gray – Paul Pettenon

To the two even braver souls who took on the job of Gra Gra (Graham Kennedy) for the evening - Paul McMahon & Rick-Mason. The jokes got better as the night went on and the comebacks to the crowd were hysterical.

Fiona and Katie have done a serious raid of their Nana's wardrobes.....

Graham and Graham and the Fella from the Winton Gardiner Creek Tribe

Craig Bodin, our now resident "Indigenous" entertainment compere, got the dance floor moving, whether it was karaoke, or the St Michael's dance off. Rudolf Lamejan's "Worm Dance" won, followed closely by 'shy' Mandy Passmore's splits.

The night raised a profit of just under $3,000, which is a great start in our quest to raise money for our Artificial Turf.

A few photos for the night, though black and white doesn't do them justice. If you haven't seen any please contact Dense Tobin, who would be happy to send you the snaps by email.

The annual Mother's Day Breakfast did not go ahead this year due to delays associated with the building of the new hall.

Thank you also to Angela Mason, Angela Bodin, Kerin Arthur, Mary Skehan, Kate Foldi, Michelle Frazer and Simone Jemmet who helped on the stall.

The PFA does however plan to host a Special Women's Breakfast later in the year. Dates will be confirmed once the hall has been finished.

Unfortunately the wrapping night was not well attended and no dads turned up. Thanks again to Jacinta Girolami, Angela Mason and Celia McNamara who wrapped 160 presents.

A big special thanks to Jacinta Girolami who organized, shopped for, wrapped and directed the Mother's Day Stall held on Monday. I am sure all the mums will be pleased with the wonderful
